DATA GOVERNANCE – CONCEPTS & PRACTICES

Program Overview

Data governance is critically important for organizations as it ensures the effective management, quality, and security of data assets.

It is everything about how data should be managed, what are the processes, data points, who controls what data and who views what information so to ensure efficient and effective management and use of data. By establishing clear policies and processes, data governance enhances trust, accuracy, and consistency, enabling organizations to maximize the value of their data and make timely and informed decisions.

For this purpose, Ed-Watch has designed a series of training programs for a top to down training approach on "Data Governance".

This specialized course focuses on board members and senior management, aiming to equip them with a thorough comprehension of data governance and its importance in managing their organization's data assets. The course covers fundamental concepts, principles, and practices of data governance, empowering board members with the necessary knowledge and awareness to fulfill their data governance responsibilities effectively.
