Program Overview

Data governance is critically important for organizations as it ensures the effective management, quality, and security of data assets.

It is everything about how data should be managed, what are the processes, data points, who controls what data and who views what information so to ensure efficient and effective management and use of data. By establishing clear policies and processes, data governance enhances trust, accuracy, and consistency, enabling organizations to maximize the value of their data and make timely and informed decisions.

For this purpose, Ed-Watch has designed a series of training programs for a top to down training approach on “Data Governance”.

This program is designed for top management, data management professionals, and internal auditors, providing them with the knowledge and skills to effectively establish and maintain a robust data governance framework within their organizations. It covers key topics such as data governance structures and roles, data governance processes, and fostering a data governance culture.
